Health and safety readiness in the age of coronavirus

STADIUM AND ARENA SAFETY FROM THE OUTSIDE IN

Sports fans, music lovers and theater enthusiasts can't wait to get back to watching their favorite athletes and performers. However, the environments in which they do this will look different going forward — much like retail stores and restaurants — and many of the same public health guidelines will apply to stadiums and arenas as well.

Approaching the Facility

Visual communications can protect fans as they move from the parking lot to the entrance. These simple but effective tools are vital to public safety.

① A-Frames

Durable and useful indoors and out, A-frame signs can be used to remind tailgaters of capacity limitations by area.

② Wall and Window Decals

Easy-on, easy-off decals can be applied to nearly any flat surface — including glass entry doors — and are ideal for cautioning visitors about “high touch” surfaces such as hand railings.

③ Durable Banners

Banners are an eye-catching, weather-resistant way to remind visitors of simple things they can do to protect themselves.

④ Hand Sanitizer Stations

Prominently placed hand sanitizer stations encourage fans to disinfect frequently.

⑤ Pole Wraps

Pole wraps offer your fans high-visibility reminders to maintain social distancing and allow extra time to enter the facility.

⑥ Single-Sided Feather Flags

Feather flags are especially effective for check-in stations.

⑦ Ground Stencils

Directional floor/ground stencils guide visitors to a smooth traffic flow.

⑤ Paper Table Tents

⑥ Banner Stands

Large and easy to read, banners communicate effectively but use minimal floor space.

② Escalator Stencils

Messaging on escalator steps can gently guide people to maintain appropriate spacing.

③ Yard Signs

Yard signs can be repositioned as needed to direct traffic or restrict seating at outdoor events.

④ Event Programs

Programs are a tried-and-true way to put critical messages into the hands of fans.
