Once Inside

- ① COMING SOON!
Hand Sanitizer Stations
Instructional placards at hand sanitizer stations encourage frequent use at your facility.
- ② Acrylic Partition Kiosks
Portable kiosks are the first line of protection for your staff. Safely welcome patients to your facility as you implement new screening policies, direct foot traffic.
- ③ Acrylic Partitions
Partition barriers between staff and patients help prevent the transmission of viruses. Two standard free-standing designs are available as well as custom heights and widths to fit your specific needs.
- ④ Floor Decals
Continuing the floor decals inside creates a clear pathway from entry to exit. They are especially effective for guiding people to hospital wards, conference rooms and elevator banks.
- ⑤ Wall and Window Decals
Easy-on, easy-off decals can also be applied to nearly any flat surface indoors — including mirrors and doors in restrooms — to promote health and safety. They are also ideal for elevator doors.

Returning to Work

- ① Wall, Window and Door Decals
Decals can be used to share important information with returning staff members including cleaning schedules, stickers indicating sanitized work spaces, PPE policies posted in breakrooms, handwashing policies in restrooms, and the sterilization status of appliances in lunchrooms.
- ② Floor Decals
Floor decals can guide employees so they don't "bunch up" and cross paths with others, a special concern in hallways and conference rooms with multiple points of entry.
- ③ Seat and Table Decals
Seat and table decals eliminate confusion about seating arrangements and ensure proper social distancing.
- ④ Table Tents and Pedestal Signs
Table tents and pedestal signs can be placed throughout a facility to remind staff of social distancing guidelines, hand sanitizer locations and more.
- ⑤ A-Frame Signs
A-frame signs at staff entrances can communicate important reminders about face masks, protective eyewear or handwashing policies.
- ⑥ Mobile Whiteboards
Mobile whiteboards are the perfect communication tool for office, breakroom and conference room entrances. Use them to provide reminders about social distancing and handwashing and to communicate things like room sanitization schedules.
